

NEW YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent. NEW YORK, Sept. 10, 1869. "The Republic" is the name of the new newspaper which yesterday afternoon burst upon the astonished city. It was hitherto considered that Gotham already boasted more evening papers than she knew what to do with, or could support. How the News (pronounced "Noo-yez"), the Telegram, and the Mail, and other one and two-cent evening papers too small to be remembered, manage to exist from day to day, is a mystery best understood by the respective cashiers. The Republic, however, may have come out only to prove how easy success is with plenty of money and under proper management; only I do feel sorry that I see any poor devil throwing away all his little savings on so risky an enterprise. Look at Abern, of the Evening Gazette, and Sweetser, of the Evening Mail (not that I pity either of them, though). Consider Mr. William Young, who started Every Afternoon, which might better have been called Essays after Dinner, or Post-prandial Platitudes. It survived for precisely one month, and the poor gentleman sank $10,000 in that short space. Therefore, I can exercise the compassion above adverted to. I hope the Republic will succeed. It has one or two of the most naturally-gifted men in the whole sphere of New York journalism upon its staff. The trouble with these gentlemen is that they are just as erratic as they are gifted, which is not altogether what is desired in a newspaper.

I hope the Harvard crew will not be disappointed in their dinner at Delmonico's. Mr. Delmonico, by-the-way, is reported to keep a Delmonico Diary, in which, for many years past, he has painfully and elaborately entered the name, condition, antecedents, and description of the personnel of whatsoever guest of his house was attractive enough to provoke his interest. Naturally he has gathered many facts about many celebrities, and his book, were it published, which it would scarcely be proper to have done, is said to teem with bright anecdotes and original reflections about the possessors of some of the most noted names in this country and in Europe. It may be taken for granted that the "true story" of many a brilliant notability, many a fugacious star, is there set down. What revelations about the Sorosis, or the Opera Bouffers, or General Grant, or Horace Greeley, or Charles Dickens, or the Chinese Ambassadors, and the thousand and one young bloods and fashionable notabilities are not inscribed upon those candid pages! In this mention of Delmonico's it is not out of place to add that a rival establishment of a similar nature is contemplated up town. The upper portion of Fifth avenue is chosen as the locality, and a couple of brown-stone mansions have already been purchased for the purpose of being converted into one. The dwellers opposite, and on either side, swell with rage and republican imbecility, but that only increases the determination of the ambitious restaurateur. He cannot be stopped. He cannot be bought up. He cannot even be reasoned with, and made to see that his own interests require him to "shake" the enterprise. And why need he? There are worse places than first-class restaurants upon Fifth avenue. When a parvenu patrician—if my rhetorical exigencies will pardon my coining such a paradox—is compelled to live with a gambling hell on one side of him and a maison de joie on the other, I should think the fumes from a cafe across the street would be almost like incense to him.

On the Fence. The man who paid $15,000 for the right to use the fence surrounding the site of the new Post Office for an advertising medium is making a good thing of it. If he goes on as he has begun, his profits will not fall short of $300,000. Bonner covered the entire superficies yesterday with his Ledger advertisements. To-day, under his wretched advertisements, covered them, and the fence is ready for a fresh advertiser. This is making a business of the thing; is it not?

Mrs. Myra Bushnell is the name of a Fashionable Millionaire who was so extremely close to a bargain that she was in the habit of obtaining, fraudulently, from a Canal street firm more goods, to the amount of several thousand dollars, than were charged her in the bills. To-day was to have been her opening day, but instead it has been her shutting up day, for Justice Dowling shut her up very tightly in the Tombs, in lieu of $1000 bail.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

"The Bohemian Girl" by the Richings' Troupe. The performance of The Bohemian Girl last evening attracted a good-sized audience, who applauded liberally. The troupe is getting settled down to its work now, and the performance went off with more spirit than on the previous nights of the season. Mr. Haigh, who appeared as "Thaddeus," is scarcely amenable to criticism, as it is understood that he has been laboring under a severe indisposition ever since his arrival in this country. He omitted the opening aria of his part, and evidently sang with an effort. In the last act, however, he put forth his strength and sang "The fair land of Poland" in such a manner as made a favorable impression as "Count Aralmeln," and he also obtained an encore for his singing of "Heart bowed down." Mrs. Bernard was in excellent voice, and she sang and acted her favorite role of "Arlene" with her accustomed grace and fervor. Mr. H. C. Peakes gave a picturesque personation of "Devilshoof," which, however, was open to the objection of being a trifle overdone. Mr. Peakes will make an excellent impression if he will moderate his transports a little.

The City Amusements. AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC Viva Diavolo will be given this evening, with the same cast as on Tuesday. At the matinee to-morrow Maritana will be performed. We hope that our readers will bear in mind the grand concert to be given by Mrs. Bernard and her troupe on the Saturday evening, for the benefit of the sufferers by the Avondale mine disaster. The necessities of the sufferers by this frightful catastrophe are most pressing, and as the artists of the Richings troupe, the orchestra, and the attaches of the house have all volunteered their services, so that the entire proceeds may go to the sufferers, the least that the public can do is to fill the house to its utmost capacity. The entertainment, we feel assured, will be in every way worthy of the patronage of the public on its own merits, and it will give an excellent opportunity for those who cannot afford large sums to contribute towards a most deserving charity. The repertoire as announced for next week is as follows: Monday, Bohemian Girl; Tuesday, Il Trovatore; Wednesday, Martha; Friday, Traviata. At the Walnut Mrs. D. P. Bowers will have a benefit this evening, when she will appear in her great role of "Judy Audley." Mrs. Bowers plays this part with remarkable expression, and it is one of her talents which her friends will show their appreciation of by filling the house to its utmost capacity. The performance will conclude with the comedy of The People's Lawyer.

Burial of a Number of the Victims of the Late Disaster. Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. WILKESHAIRE, Sept. 10.—3 P. M.—The funeral cortege is just entering the town. The streets are lined with people. The procession was preceded by a squad of soldiers, carrying arms reversed. They were followed by a Post of the Grand Army of the Republic. Next in the line were the hearse bearing the remains, and then came about 100 coffins containing the families and friends of the deceased. Hundreds of miners, wearing badges of mourning, appeared in the procession on foot. The following are the names of those interred on this side of the river in the Catholic cemetery:—Daniel Pryor, Dennis Gayton, James Murray, James Harkin, John Maher, Michael Daley, James Wilcox, John Groaty, and several others whose names have not been ascertained. FROM NEW YORK. Charged with Embezzling $7700. New York, Sept. 10.—H. B. Mattison, a former internal revenue officer in this city, who was, with Sheridan Shook, Assistant Assessor Abraham, and another person not yet arrested, charged with embezzling a check for $7700, paid for internal revenue, came from Venango county and voluntarily gave himself up, and was held in $5000 bail for examination. More Relief. The Corporation Counsel, Corporation Attorney, and Public Administrators' Offices to-day subscribed $445 in aid of Avondale sufferers. FROM WASHINGTON. Claims of the Hudson Bay Company. Despatch to The Associated Press.
